While the exact order and wording of prompts can vary slightly between different editions and printings of Wreck This Journal, the core concepts remain consistent. Here, we'll cover the most iconic and commonly found pages, giving you a taste of the delightful destruction that awaits.

The Inviting Entrance: Front and Back Cover Chaos

Every wrecking adventure begins and ends with the covers. These are your first and last impressions, and they're begging for some attention!

1. Front Cover: "For this page, tear this page in half. Then, fold it into a paper airplane and fly it around the room." This is your initiation. Rip, fold, and send your journal soaring. It's a defiant act against the pristine nature of a new book.
2. Back Cover: "Smash This Book." Often the final instruction, this page encourages you to physically interact with the journal in a more forceful way. Think stomping, throwing (gently!), or even a good old-fashioned shake.

The Foundation of Fun: Introduction and Initial Pages

These early pages are designed to ease you into the wrecking mindset.

1. "This journal belongs to..." Page: Instead of your name, fill this with something unexpected or nonsensical. Or, cover it in stickers, doodles, or even a self-portrait made of random objects.
2. "Instructions for use" Page: This page often lists some general guidelines, but the real fun is in how you interpret them. Ignore them!
3. "Lay the journal open and drip something on this page." Coffee, tea, paint, ink – let gravity be your artist. Don't be afraid to embrace the splatters!

4. "Poke holes into this page with your pen." Create patterns, constellations, or just random dots. It's a tactile experience that changes the texture of the paper.
5. "Color this page with a pencil." This seems simple, but the challenge is to color the entire page, creating a solid block of color. Go back and forth, layer it, and see what happens.

The Heart of the Chaos: Iconic and Beloved Prompts

These are the pages that truly define the Wreck This Journal experience, pushing boundaries and encouraging imaginative destruction.

1. "Create a page of random scribbles." This is pure freedom. Let your pen wander without any intention. Scribble, doodle, or just make a mess.
2. "Glue a collection of random objects onto this page." Think ticket stubs, buttons, leaves, fabric scraps, bits of string – anything you can find! This is a fantastic opportunity for collage and texture.
3. "Draw with a wet medium." Watercolor, ink, or even just water. Watch the colors bleed and blend. This page is all about experimentation with liquids.
4. "Cover this page with the contents of your pocket." Lint, coins, receipts, forgotten candies – empty your pockets and create a layered collage of your daily life.
5. "Trace the objects on this page." Place objects from your surroundings onto the page and trace their outlines. This can lead to unexpected patterns and compositions.
6. "Tape this page into a book." This prompt encourages interaction with the outside world. Find a book, tape a page of your journal inside it, and leave it for someone else to discover.
7. "Make a paper chain." Cut the page into strips and link them together to form a chain. It's a simple yet satisfying act of deconstruction.
8. "Break the spine." This is a classic wrecking prompt! Carefully bend and crease the spine of the journal until it's no longer pristine.
9. "Doodle in the margins." Fill the margins with small drawings, notes, or anything that comes to mind.
10. "Burn this page." (Use with extreme caution and adult supervision!) This prompt is often debated, and many choose to interpret it symbolically, like scorching the edges with a lighter or using dark ink. If you choose to actually burn, do so safely and responsibly in a fireproof container.
11. "Paint with your feet." Yes, you read that right! Dip your feet in paint and stomp, slide, and dance across the page.
12. "Collect and paste 'found' text." Cut out words and phrases from magazines, newspapers, or junk mail to create a collage of text.
13. "Make a series of dots." Create a pattern, a picture, or just a random scattering of dots using a pen or marker.
14. "Rip this page to shreds." Another cathartic act of destruction. Rip it into small pieces, large pieces, or anything in between.
15. "Draw with your eyes closed." A true test of letting go! Close your eyes and let your hand move freely across the page.

16. "Blind contour drawing." Look at an object, and draw its outline without looking at your paper. The results are often hilariously distorted.
17. "Seal this page inside a plastic bag and pour water on it." Watch the ink run and create abstract art.
18. "Leave this page outside." Expose it to the elements – rain, wind, sun. See how nature transforms your creation.
19. "Stitch this page." Use a needle and thread to sew patterns, designs, or even just to hold torn pieces together.
20. "Write a story on this page." Let your imagination run wild and craft a narrative, no matter how nonsensical.
21. "Create a pattern with things you find in the kitchen." Spices, coffee grounds, pasta – get creative with your culinary supplies.
22. "Cut out a shape and trace it." Find an interesting shape and use it as a stencil.
23. "Fill this page with your favorite things." Draw them, write them, or collage them.
24. "Scratch into this page." Use a sharp object to etch designs or textures into the paper.
25. "Create a sun print." Place objects on the page and leave it in direct sunlight for an extended period. The sun will bleach the exposed areas, leaving a unique imprint.

The Wrappings Up: Pages of Reflection and Finality

As you near the end of your wrecking journey, some pages encourage a bit more contemplation, though still with that characteristic Keri Smith twist.

1. "This is where you were when you finished this journal." Document your current location and state of mind.
2. "Score this page with a coin." Create lines and patterns by rubbing a coin over the paper.
3. "Add dirt to this page." Literally mix dirt with water or glue and spread it on the page for a grungy, textured effect.
4. "Create a shadow drawing." Place objects in sunlight and trace the shadows they cast on the page.
5. "Press flowers onto this page." A more delicate form of wrecking, but still a transformation of the original paper.
6. "Write a message to your future self." What advice or thoughts do you want to convey to the person you'll be when you revisit this journal?

3. Letting Go is Liberating: The act of "wrecking" can be incredibly cathartic. It allows individuals to release pent-up emotions, anxieties, and the pressure to conform.
4. The Journey is the Destination: The focus is on the act of creating and experiencing, not on producing a perfect final product. Each page is a step in a personal artistic journey.
