The American muscle car scene has a massive presence in Australia, and Ford's iconic offerings are no exception.

1. Ford Mustang (First Generation - 1964.5-1973): The original Pony Car. Key Considerations When Buying: Due Diligence is Crucial

Purchasing a classic Ford muscle car is a significant undertaking. Here are essential factors to consider to ensure you make a sound investment and avoid potential pitfalls:

1. Condition and Originality: Is the car a factory original or a modified example? While modifications can be appealing, original cars often hold their value better. Thoroughly inspect the bodywork for rust, dents, and signs of accident damage. Check the interior for wear and tear, and the engine bay for any obvious leaks or issues.

2. Mechanical Inspection: This is non-negotiable. Before handing over any money, have a qualified mechanic who specialises in classic Fords inspect the vehicle. They can identify potential mechanical problems that you might miss. Check the engine, transmission, brakes, suspension, and electrical systems.
3. Documentation and History: A car with a comprehensive service history, original build plates, and provenance is always more desirable. Ask for any receipts for past work, restoration records, and ownership history.
4. Restoration Quality: If the car has been restored, what was the quality of the work? Poorly executed restorations can be more problematic than original cars. Look for evidence of professional work and attention to detail.
5. Compliance and Registration: Ensure the car can be legally registered in your state or territory. Some older vehicles or modified cars may have compliance issues.
6. Budget for Maintenance: Classic cars, by their nature, require ongoing maintenance. Factor in the cost of regular servicing, potential repairs, and parts availability. Some parts for rarer models can be harder to source.

The Thrill of Ownership: More Than Just a Car

Owning a classic Ford muscle car is an experience that transcends simple transportation.
