After reading, facilitate a group brainstorming session. Ask the children: "What are some of the things Mum does in the book?" Write down their responses on the large paper, perhaps creating a mind map or a list.

2. Illustrated Qualities: The "Mum Collage"

Divide the children into small groups. Assign each group a specific page or spread from the book. Their task is to identify a particular talent or quality of Mum from that page (e.g., "Mum is strong," "Mum can sing," "Mum is a good cook"). They can then draw or collage this quality onto a heart or star shape. For example, for "Mum is strong," they might draw Mum lifting something heavy or use pipe cleaners to create strong arms. This activity encourages visual representation of abstract ideas.

Ask the children: "What does it mean when the book says Mum is like a pop star?" Explain that it means she's talented and perhaps very entertaining. Then, encourage the children to complete the sentence: "My Mum is like a..." or "My Mum is..." using descriptive words and comparisons. They can write or draw their responses. This activity promotes figurative language.

Set up a dramatic play area that mimics a common scenario involving a mum, such as a kitchen, a shop, or a park. Children can use puppets or dress-up clothes to act out their own stories about their mums. This kinesthetic approach allows them to embody the characters and practice dialogue. This is a particularly effective way to develop their oral language and social skills.

For example, a shiny piece of paper for a "sparkly" mum, or soft fabric for a "cuddly" mum. This is a very tactile and engaging activity.

3. Expressive Portraits – Drawing Mum's Feelings

Focus on the emotional expressions in the book. Ask children to draw portraits of their mums showing different emotions (happy, proud, thoughtful). 4. "Surreal Mum" Creation

Introduce the concept of "surrealism" in a child-friendly way. Explain that it's like putting everyday things together in surprising or unexpected ways. 2. "Thank You, Mum" Notes and Drawings

2. Children choose a "superpower" or characteristic of their mum they discussed earlier (e.g., "the best hugger," "the fastest baker," "the cleverest reader").

3. They then act out or present this characteristic for a short period as the "exhibit."
4. Encourage them to use movement, sound, or simple dialogue to convey their chosen aspect. This is a great way to foster confidence and public speaking skills in a low-pressure environment.

Using PDFs like My Mum Anthony Browne Lesson Plans alongside other formats creates a balanced digital content strategy.

This hybrid approach allows users to choose how they consume information while ensuring that authoritative versions remain available in a stable format.
