Likely Trends and Design Influences of July 2015

To better understand the potential content of the July 7, 2015 issue, it's helpful to consider the prevailing design influences of that period:

The Rise of Scandinavian and Hygge

The Scandinavian aesthetic, characterized by its simplicity, functionality, and use of natural materials, was in full bloom around 2015. This often translated into light-filled spaces with minimalist furniture, a neutral colour palette, and the introduction of cosy elements that would later be widely associated with the Danish concept of 'hygge' – a feeling of warmth, comfort, and contentment. Expect to see clean lines, pale woods, and an emphasis on creating a calm and inviting atmosphere.

Mid-Century Modern Revival

Pieces by designers like Eames, Saarinen, and Knoll would have been referenced, influencing furniture choices, lighting fixtures, and even the overall layout of rooms. This trend brought a touch of retro elegance and timeless appeal to contemporary homes.

Bohemian and Eclectic Touches

While minimalism was popular, there was also a growing appreciation for eclectic and bohemian styles. This involved layering patterns, textures, and colours to create a more personalised and curated look. Think of vintage finds mixed with contemporary pieces, global influences, and a relaxed, lived-in feel. This offered a counterpoint to the more pared-back aesthetics, allowing for bolder individual expression.

Focus on Natural Materials and Sustainability

There was an increasing awareness and desire to incorporate natural materials into homes. This included the use of wood, stone, linen, cotton, and wool, not only for their aesthetic appeal but also for their connection to nature and their sustainable qualities. This trend aimed to create healthier and more grounding living environments.

Bold Colours and Statement Pieces

While neutrals remained popular, there was also a move towards incorporating bolder accent colours to add personality and drama. This could be seen in statement furniture pieces, feature walls, or vibrant accessories. Jewel tones and richer, deeper hues might have featured alongside the more prevalent pastels and earth tones, offering a sophisticated contrast.
