For a taste of Adelaide's character, explore the inner-north suburbs like North Adelaide, Fitzroy, and Prospect. North Adelaide boasts beautiful heritage architecture and parklands. The tram line is particularly useful for reaching key city attractions and coastal suburbs like Glenelg. Many central suburbs are also very walkable and bike-friendly, with increasing bike lane infrastructure.
4	Where can I find affordable yet desirable suburbs within a reasonable commuting distance to Adelaide CBD?	Look to the southern and western suburbs for more affordable options with reasonable commutes. Suburbs like Christie Downs, Lonsdale, and Elizabeth in the south, or areas further west like Parafield Gardens, can offer lower property prices while still being accessible to the CBD via train lines or major arterial roads.

For easy access to the Barossa Valley, consider suburbs north-east of Adelaide like Tea Tree Gully or the Adelaide Hills towns such as Hahndorf. To reach McLaren Vale, look to southern suburbs like Seaford or even coastal towns like Port Noarlunga, which are much closer to this renowned wine region.
